Chicago jazz legend Art Hoyle was born in Corinth, Mississippi, where he received his first trumpet at the age of 8. At 15 he was playing professionally in and around Gary, Indiana. After a four-year stint in U.S. Air Force bands, Mr. Hoyle joined the Sun Ra Ark-estra (1955) and appeared on several of that band's important early recordings.

From 1957-60 he toured North America and Europe with the Lionel Hampton Orchestra before settling back in Chicago as a member of the CBS Staff Orchestra. A vital and familiar presence on Chicago stages, Mr. Hoyle has been a featured soloist with vocalists Tony Bennett, Ella Fitzgerald, Lena Horne, Peggy Lee, Sarah Vaughan, and Joe Williams, and has played in bands led by Louie Bellson, Quincy Jones, and Henry Mancini.

Mr. Hoyle has been heard in hundreds of commercial jingles and is also a voice-over talent whose resonant, gravelly baritone has graced radio and TV commercials spanning four decades.
